WIN a Mini Farm Project Coffee and Liqueur Prize Pack

The team at the Redcliffe Guide are excited to partner with The Mini Farm Project to give two lucky readers the chance to win a delicious prize pack this October.

Each winner will receive a 500ml bottle of Dark Acre Coffee Liqueur and a 1kg bag of Mini Farm Coffee. Together, the two prize packs are valued at $228.

Dark Acre Coffee Liqueur is a gold medallist at the London Spirits Awards and is distilled using The Mini Farm Project's own Farmhouse Brew coffee blend. Rich and full of flavour, it is a perfect ingredient for an Espresso Martini.

The Mini Farm Coffee has been personally blended by renowned coffee expert Phil Di Bella and is roasted locally in Brisbane.

The Mini Farm Project is a South East Queensland charity building farms to help feed Australian families and children experiencing food insecurity. It also provides horticultural training opportunities for disengaged young people.

Instead of relying solely on donations, the charity sells quality products that people can enjoy while supporting its work. Every product purchased helps fund 10 meals for Australians experiencing food insecurity.

With Christmas approaching, The Mini Farm Project's coffee, liqueur, candles and bags also make thoughtful gifts with a positive impact. Ordering early can help shoppers get organised before Christmas stock and shipping cut-offs arrive. The charity's work has been featured on Gardening Australia. Readers can learn more and explore the product range at www.mfp.org.au.

FIRE SAFETY STARTS AT HOME: BE READY ALL YEAR ROUND

Fire safety isn't something to think about just once a year! It's a habit that protects your home and loved ones every single day. From creating a fire evacuation plan to upgrading your smoke alarms and switchboard, a little preparation now can make all the difference in an emergency.

According to local experts JK Electrical, fire safety starts with preparation and prevention. A key part of that is having working, compliant smoke alarms, and making sure every member of the household knows exactly what to do if the alarm sounds.

"In a house fire, seconds count," says Joel from JK Electrical. "Having an evacuation plan and reliable smoke alarms can save lives."

By 1 January 2027, all Queensland homes, townhouses, and units must have photoelectric, interconnected smoke alarms installed. These alarms must meet Australian Standard AS 3786-2014, be hardwired or powered by a non-removable 10-year battery and must not contain an ionisation sensor.

Smoke alarms must be installed:

- On each storey of your home
- In every bedroom
- In hallways that connect bedrooms to other areas
- Between sleeping and living areas if no hallway exists
- In the most likely exit path if there are no bedrooms on a storey

JK Electrical installs high-quality alarms from Brooks Australia, a trusted Australian-owned company known for rigorous product testing and reliability.

But smoke alarms are just one piece of the safety puzzle. Your switchboard also plays a vital role in protecting your home. If it's more than 20 years old — or still uses fuse wires — it might not be equipped to handle today's electrical demands. Flickering lights, tripping power, or regular outages can all signal that an upgrade is overdue.

Older switchboards often lack safety switches, which automatically cut the power in the event of a fault — preventing electric shock or even fire.

"A switchboard upgrade is one of the smartest ways to protect your home," Joel advises. "It's an investment in your family's safety and peace of mind."

Fire safety doesn't just happen — it's planned. Take the time to review your smoke alarms, check your switchboard, and make sure your family knows exactly what to do if the worst happens.

Contact JK Electrical on 07 3150 6020 for a home safety check, smoke alarm installation, or switchboard upgrade today.

We're There For You

DRIVING MISS DAISY REDCLIFFE PENINSULA

A visit to friends in New Farm gave Ian Dowdall and his wife, Dr Ai Ling Tan, an idea. Their friend's wife was living with early-onset dementia, and they saw how personalised transport and companionship could help her remain independent while supporting her husband.

With plans already underway to make the Redcliffe Peninsula their new home, Ian began the process of bringing Driving Miss Daisy to the area — around 12 months before they arrived.

Driving Miss Daisy is much more than transport. Its door-to-door companion driving service helps clients attend medical appointments, shop, meet friends and enjoy outings. Drivers can stay during appointments, assist with shopping and provide reassurance throughout the journey. Wherever possible, clients see familiar faces, allowing trust and relationships to grow.

For Ian, every older Australian has a story worth hearing. He values the wisdom, humour and life experience shared during each journey, and believes a steady hand or friendly conversation can make an enormous difference.

By helping people remain independent, connected and engaged, Driving Miss Daisy provides more than a lift. It helps strengthen the community Ian and Ai Ling now call home.

BURNIE BRAE

For more than four decades, Burnie Brae has been a quiet but powerful force in strengthening connections across North Brisbane and Moreton Bay. What began in 1984 as grassroots, community-driven initiative - supported by the Rotary Club of Chermide - has grown into a trusted not-for-profit dedicated to helping people feel supported, included and engaged at every stage of life.

At its heart, Burnie Brae is about connection. Through a thoughtful mix of in-home care, allied health services, and vibrant social programs, the organisation empowers seniors to maintain independence while staying active and involved in their community. From day trips and technology lessons to transport services and friendly gatherings, every offering is designed to make daily life easier - and more enjoyable.

But it's often the smallest moments that matter most. Whether it's helping someone build confidence, form new friendships, or simply share a laugh, the team at Burnie Brae sees firsthand the meaningful impact of their work.

Guided by their belief in "community, connection, care," Burnie Brae continues to create welcoming spaces where seniors feel valued, supported and truly belong—strengthening the fabric of the local community for generations to come.

HOLISTIC HORIZONS SUPPORT SERVICES

Holistic Horizons Support Services began with a simple belief: everyone deserves to live with dignity, independence and connection.

Its founder was inspired by seeing the difference compassionate, reliable support can make, particularly as people grow older. That experience shaped a service that looks beyond immediate needs and takes time to understand the whole person, their preferences and the life they want to keep enjoying.

For local seniors, support might mean transport to an appointment, help with everyday tasks, companionship, an outing or simply a good conversation. Each service is flexible and personal, helping people feel safe and comfortable while remaining independent and involved in their community.

Yet the most meaningful moments are often the smallest. Helping someone attend a social activity, making their day a little easier or listening to a story can have a lasting impact. These moments build trust and help people feel valued and heard.

At Holistic Horizons, community means looking out for one another and creating a genuine sense of belonging. By building respectful relationships and helping reduce social isolation, the team hopes to support more people to remain confident, connected and fulfilled in the communities they call home.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST HOME ASSIST SECURE

For more than 20 years, Churches of Christ Home Assist Secure has helped eligible older people remain safe, secure and independent in their own homes.

The Queensland Government-funded program provides subsidised labour for essential gardening, home maintenance, repairs and modifications. These practical services can make an enormous difference, particularly when a task requires technical expertise or could place someone's health and safety at risk.

Across the Redcliffe region, the dedicated call centre and network of contractors provide year-round support to more than 500 clients. Behind every job is a commitment to helping older residents feel confident and comfortable at home while maintaining their independence.

For the Home Assist Secure team, supporting seniors is also an opportunity to give something back. Older community members have helped shape the society we enjoy today, sharing their experience, strength and wisdom with the generations that followed.

The team sees community as family: a source of support, guidance and companionship. Through dependable, practical assistance, Home Assist Secure helps ensure local seniors know they are valued and that help is available when they need it.

BEAUMONT CARE

Since 2007, Australian family-owned Beaumont Care has supported older Australians and people living with disability across South East Queensland.

Founded by Linda Beaumont, the organisation began with a passion for genuine, compassionate care. It has since grown to provide residential aged care, Support at Home and disability services, while remaining inspired by the stories, experiences and resilience of the people it supports.

For Beaumont Care, connection is just as important as support. Residents and clients are encouraged to continue enjoying outings and interests, whether that means bingo at the Dolphins Club, fish and chips by the sea or celebrating special occasions.

Personalised care reflects each person's needs, preferences and goals. Support can include respite care, nursing, social support, allied health, domestic assistance and yard maintenance, helping people remain safe and independent in the homes and communities they know.

The greatest rewards are simple: seeing someone regain confidence, form new friendships, or smile after a wonderful day. With its head office located on Anzac Avenue and a team of dedicated local employees, Beaumont Care is deeply connected to the community.

Its promise, "Warm-hearted Care, Your Way", means everyone deserves to feel seen, heard, respected and valued.

HEARING HELP

For audiologist Erin Seamer, good hearing care is about more than hearing aids. It is about helping people stay connected to conversations, relationships and the activities they value.

After 25 years as an audiologist, including 19 years in the Moreton Bay community, Erin established Hearing Help in Newport in 2022. Her aim was to provide personal, unrushed care focused on long-term relationships. As an independent clinic, Hearing Help is not tied to one manufacturer, allowing recommendations to reflect each person's hearing needs, lifestyle and goals.

Hearing Help also provides specialised services locally, including cochlear implant assessment and ongoing care, tinnitus treatments and auditory rehabilitation. These reflect Erin's belief that hearing healthcare can involve much more than fitting a hearing aid.

Over the years, Erin began noticing qualities shared by many of the older clients she particularly admired — staying connected, remaining engaged, having a sense of purpose and continuing to participate in life.

Moreton Bay is also home for Erin and her family. They live and shop locally, with family life centred around local schools, sport and community activities. She values seeing familiar faces return and often caring for several generations of one family.

Erin hopes Hearing Help remains a place where people receive professional, independent advice and feel genuinely heard and cared for throughout their hearing journey.

GOURMET MEALS

Sometimes independence is supported by something as simple as knowing there is an enjoyable meal ready when it is needed.

Since 1993, family-owned Australian business Gourmet Meals has been preparing home-style frozen meals for people who may find shopping, preparing ingredients or cooking difficult. For the team, it is about more than convenience. It is about helping people continue living well in their own homes.

Supporting seniors is at the heart of the business. Home delivery makes meals easily accessible, while customers can also visit the Biggera Waters store or speak with the local team by phone. That friendly, personal assistance helps make ordering feel simple and comfortable.

Choice is important too. Different portion sizes and a selection of meals, soups and desserts cater for a range of appetites and preferences, including high-protein, gluten-free and vegetarian options. Meals are also reviewed annually by an Accredited Practising Dietitian, and eligible customers can use Support at Home funding.

The greatest reward for the team comes from hearing how this support makes everyday life easier. Over time, they have built valued relationships with customers, families and care providers.

For Gourmet Meals, community means looking after one another. By combining reliable service, genuine human support and nourishing meals people can look forward to, the team helps local seniors feel supported, valued and independent.

RETIREMENT CARE SOLUTIONS

Retirement and aged care decisions can feel overwhelming, but Retirement Care Solutions helps seniors and their families understand their options.

Savannah Falzon established the independent consultancy 11 years ago after experiencing the challenges of navigating the next stage of life with her own ageing parents while raising a family. She discovered there was no single solution suited to everyone.

Today, the team takes a holistic and personalised approach, considering each client's care needs, lifestyle, social preferences and financial circumstances. Support may involve exploring ways to remain independent at home, finding suitable retirement living or transitioning into residential aged care.

Complimentary Discovery Sessions give seniors and families an opportunity to understand their choices and begin planning before a crisis arises. Tailored fixed-fee packages are also available for those needing support throughout the journey.

The team regularly participates in local expos, presentations and community events, sharing practical information and building connections with trusted professionals and organisations. They also advocate for families during difficult periods, including carer burnout and changing care needs.

For Retirement Care Solutions, the greatest reward is helping older people feel seen, heard and supported while giving their families reassurance that they do not have to navigate the journey alone.

All Aboard Redcliffe Peninsula Railway Line's 10th Anniversary

STORY KELLY WALKER
LOCAL HISTORY COLLECTION

For generations, Redcliffe residents dreamed of a railway connecting them to Brisbane – and more than a century after the first proposal was submitted, the Redcliffe Peninsula Rail Line finally became a reality.

Historian Dr Ruth Kerr and Maxwell Barton OAM will be speaking at the Redcliffe Museum this month to mark the line's 10th anniversary with a look back at the journey from the original 1885 proposal for the 'Humpy Bong Railway' to the arrival of the first train at Kippa-Ring in 2016.

Dr Kerr has spent decades researching the state's railway history and said that while it was clear that a rail link would bring many benefits to the growing peninsula, there were also numerous roadblocks along the way.

"The peninsula's small population has always been a disadvantage in gaining approval for new infrastructure," she said. "As well, the building of the Hornibrook Highway put the railway project back by decades."

Despite changing governments, competing proposals and repeated setbacks, Dr Kerr said she believes optimism about the peninsula's future helped keep the railway dream alive.

Maxwell, who chaired the 'RAIL 09 – It's time for the line' campaign, played a key role in the final push to make the project happen.

"I took a lot of personal satisfaction when construction commenced in late 2013 and the project became a reality," he said. "It is about 10 years since the first train arrived at Kippa Ring station, and this event is a celebration of that achievement and how a non-aligned community campaign turned political promises into reality.

"The project wasn't just about Redcliffe, it was turned into a regional issue that affected a number of electorates between Redcliffe and Petrie. By doing that, it became of greater importance to governments of the day than just a singular Redcliffe issue."

City of Moreton Bay Mayor Peter Flannery said the Redcliffe Peninsula Rail Line provided a vital missing link, transforming public transport access to the Redcliffe Peninsula.

"Ten years on from its historic opening, the Redcliffe Peninsula Rail Line continues to remind us what a critical piece of infrastructure this is to Moreton Bay," he said.

"Rail remains one of the most accessible forms of public transport and I'm sure the early visionaries who first championed this project would be delighted to know that the people of Kippa-Ring, Rothwell, Mango Hill, Murrumba Downs, Kallangur and surrounding areas now have easy access to Brisbane and beyond."

The event is free but bookings are essential. Go to moretonbay.qld.gov.au/Galleries-Museums/Events/RM/Redcliffe-Peninsula-Rail-Line-Turns-10

NO CRACKS PLUMBING

Celebrates 20 Years
OF LOCAL TRUST

For 20 years, No Cracks Plumbing has been fixing leaks, solving plumbing problems and building something even more valuable along the way: a reputation for trust within the local community.

And some of those customer relationships go back even further.

"One of the customers I met on the very first day of my apprenticeship is still a customer today," Neil said. "A lot of our customers have been with us for many years and have watched us grow as a couple and as a family."

The business began when Neil acquired it from Roy Miles, the plumber who had taken him on as an apprentice. When Roy was ready to retire, he saw something in the young plumber and offered Neil the opportunity to take the next step.

The memorable name came about during a Saturday night brainstorming session with mates, the group landed on No Cracks Plumbing. Two decades later, it is a name well known across the Sandgate and Redcliffe areas.

While plenty has changed since those early days, particularly technology, the way Neil approaches his work hasn't.

A self-confessed perfectionist, Neil was still running the business with a paper diary until just two years ago. Social media and digital technology have transformed how the business operates and connects with customers, but its underlying philosophy remains refreshingly simple.

"I won't do to your property what I wouldn't do in my own," Neil said.

Doing the job properly the first time, giving customers honest advice and not steering them towards work they don't need have helped create those long-lasting relationships.

The family's connection to the area runs deep too. Their children have attended local schools, they have been heavily involved with a local football club, and they consider themselves very much part of the 4017 community. They have also built strong connections across the Redcliffe Peninsula, where residents have been particularly supportive of local small businesses.

"I won't do to your property what I wouldn't do in my own"

After 20 years, the family is proud to have built a business that people know, recommend and return to, with word of mouth remaining an important source of new customers.

And there may even be another generation waiting in the wings, with Neil's son, a student at St Patrick's College, already showing an interest in becoming a plumber, whilst his daughter is studying a Diploma of Business at St John Fisher.

For No Cracks Plumbing, 20 years may just be the beginning.

Redcliffe Art Society Landmark Exhibition

It is no small accomplishment to celebrate 65 years as an art society, and Redcliffe Art Society (RAS) plans to commemorate this milestone with an exhibition of prize-winning artwork from over the years.

The exhibition opening is set for Saturday, 3 October, alongside live music, food trucks, craft stalls, demonstrations and attractions to celebrate what is an entirely volunteer-run organisation with a permanent home at the heritage-listed Redcliffe Fire Station.

According to Deborah Eddy, Volunteer Gallery Manager at Redcliffe Art Society, the exhibition is quite eclectic but will be tintured by an overall theme relating to the passion each artist brings to their chosen subject matter.

“All our members are grateful to have such a wonderful place to come and learn and exhibit, and they are excited to celebrate that they have these opportunities,” Ms Eddy said.

One such artist, Winnie Luk, said she was thrilled to take part in the event, particularly in that she felt “privileged to be invited to join other winning artists to take part in this historical exhibition.”

Ms Eddy said that when viewers inevitably read the artists’ statements at the exhibition, they will be able to observe the relationship between the subject matter and the artist’s connections to a particular location, colours or even personal recollections.

“There are those artists who are storytellers and those who revel in the natural world,” she said.

As highly fitting to the panoramic sweep of the exhibition itself, she said that the atmosphere at the event would be celebratory and inclusive to the wider community – complete with a huge birthday cake, visiting dignitaries, and, of course, the many artists present on the day.

“Many people may drive by the fire station and wonder what goes on here, and who doesn’t love a birthday party?” Ms Eddy said.

She said the volunteer team hoped to make the exhibition a “real standout celebration” that honours the past, celebrates the present and, most importantly, inspires younger creatives to see RAS as a place to create, helping secure its future through continued community support.

For more information on the event, visit redcliffeartsociety.com.au/exhibitions or search for ‘Redcliffe Art Society, Old Fire Station Gallery’ on Facebook.

Where to Find Gluten-Free Dining in Redcliffe

STORY ALYSSA MACKAY

M*any Redcliffe eateries are catering to gluten-free diners, with some taking extra steps to minimise the risk of cross-contamination with other products.*

One popular choice is Marvelous Fish and Chips on Landsborough Avenue, Scarborough, where owner Rebecca Cockett said the business has a separate fryer for gluten-free food.

Rebecca said Marvelous understood the importance of avoiding cross-contamination.

"We have a very loyal gluten-free customer base, as we take care with the preparation of our gluten-free food and offer a gluten-free crumb and batter," she said.

"We chose to include gluten-free options into our menu because of a definite need in the market. We started with a batter, but incorporated a crumb last year to give our gluten-free customers a choice, like everybody else.

"It's important to us that we provide gluten-free, as it allows families to eat together when one or more family members may have an intolerance to gluten...."

"The amount of gluten-free customers who are so excited and say they haven't had fish and chips for years is truly satisfying, as to most of us, it is taken for granted that we can pop to our local chippie for a feed anytime."

Bazil&Co at Scarborough Beach Resort also caters for gluten-free diners, with a range of cakes including tarts, cakes, cheesecakes and biscuits.

Along Redcliffe Parade, Café Diversity offers gluten-free options on most breakfast items and can make toasties, burgers and sandwiches gluten-free, as well as offering gluten-free cakes.

Fish and chips fans can find gluten-free options at Yabbey Road, including battered fish, chips, calamari and potato scallops.

Papi's Mexican Kitchen reportedly has a mostly gluten-free menu, including enchiladas, chicken nachos and pork tacos.

La Lanterna is said to make its own gluten-free gnocchi in-house, with a dedicated gluten-free kitchen space and knowledgeable staff.

Meanwhile, Aussie Rooster Kippa Ring recently said on its Facebook page that, as far as the business knows, it is the only store in Brisbane offering gluten-free roast chicken.

At Que Dining in Newport, diners can also find several gluten-free options on the Vietnamese cuisine menu.

While many local venues take precautions, diners concerned about cross-contamination should speak with staff before ordering, particularly at venues that are not dedicated gluten-free.

Where to Find Free Things to Do in North Brisbane

Finding free things to do in North Brisbane does not have to mean hours of searching. Once you know where to look, you can uncover options.

My first stop is the Brisbane City Council events calendar. Toggle the search to “free”, then filter by date, event type, suburb, venue and age. You can select several nearby suburbs or switch to map view and zoom in around home.

For North Lakes, Redcliffe, Caboolture and surrounding areas, visit City of Moreton Bay's What's On calendar and tick the “free” box. Both council areas also have separate library calendars, where you can filter activities by branch, date and audience.

For active options, search Move Well Brisbane or Healthy and Active Moreton by location and date. Eventbrite and Humanitix also have free-event sections, while Facebook Events can uncover smaller neighbourhood activities. Search using your suburb plus terms such as “free”, “family” or “community”.

Before heading out, check the age limits, location and whether bookings are required. Free activities can fill quickly, especially during school holidays.

I have included direct links and screenshots in the full online guide. Check it out here:

Retirement Expo to Showcase Lifestyle Options

STORY ALYSSA MACKAY

A free event showcasing retirement communities and resorts will be held this month for people exploring their retirement living options.

The Brisbane North Retirement Village and Resort Expo, hosted by Dorsal Media, will be held on Sunday, 25 October and Monday, 26 October at Kedron-Wavell. The expo will give visitors the opportunity to ask questions and gather information about a range of retirement living communities, including over-50s resorts, retirement villages offering independent living and options providing assisted or specialist care.

Dorsal Media director Dorothy Willoughby said the event differed from other seniors' expos because of its unique focus on retirement communities and resorts.

“Our aim is to make it as easy as we can for retirees to access information about the different retirement communities,” Dorothy said.

“It's a very big (and scary) decision to downsize from the house that you have lived in for maybe 30 years, but we know retirees who – having done their research and finding their ideal community – thrive.”

Visitors will be able to discuss their retirement preferences directly with industry representatives and learn more about what retirement living entails. Dorothy said buying into a retirement village or resort should be viewed as a lifestyle investment rather than a real estate investment, with a focus on freedom, independence and companionship.

“Having access to different social and physical activities on a daily basis, residents visit their GP less often, go into aged care later than those still in their homes and most importantly, are generally happier with their lives,” she said.

Step Into the Eighties for a Killer Night

Kristina Ollenburg (Ruth), Joel Thomas (Gerald), Logan Lewis (Lisa)

STORY ALYSSA MACKAY

Grab your shoulder pads, sharpen your detective skills and prepare for a murder mystery with a 1980s twist.

Dressed to Kill: An Interactive Murder

Mystery, directed by Karen Christl, will run at Mousetrap Theatre from 23 October to 1 November, inviting audiences to become part of the action as they try to work out 'whodunit'.

Karen, who has directed for Mousetrap for many years, said that although she had been involved in many types of productions, the interactive murder mystery is one of her favourites.

"The basic storyline remains the same, but the murderer changes from performance to performance," she said. "The combination of scripted dialogue and improvised answers to the audience questions makes this type of play an extra challenge for the actors, and no two performances are ever the same."

Set in 1983, Dressed to Kill follows an amateur theatre company whose backstage tensions at a fashion show take a deadly turn when a murder is committed.

The cast includes Sheryl Salmon as co-founder of the group Barbara, who spends her time bragging about her daughter's career in musical theatre;

Nixie Farina as Marigold, a talented actress who rarely gets the opportunity to show off her skills on stage; and Kristina Ollenburg as ambitious mother Ruth.

Tom Burrell plays the other co-founder, Larry, a "dreadful ham" who irritates the rest of the cast by quoting Shakespeare, and Logan Lewis plays the confident Lisa, who possesses an unwavering faith in her own acting talent.

"A key part of the experience is the audience interaction," Karen said. "Audiences can put their detective skills to the test by 'interrogating' the suspects. Because the murderer changes each performance, the questions and responses vary every night, keeping the show fresh and requiring the cast to rely on strong improvisation skills. Unlike a murder mystery on television or film, the audience becomes part of the action by asking their own questions and helping to solve the case."

The event includes table seating, with attendees invited to bring their own drinks and snacks. There will be prizes for the best team name and best-dressed, along with trivia and games.

"I hope audiences leave Dressed to Kill after a fantastic night out with family and friends, laughing at the delightfully questionable fashions of the era and humming their favourite mid-1980s hits—What a Feeling!" Karen said.

Tickets are $25 for adults, $20 for concession, $15 for children and $15 for members.

Run for Órla

Shealy Family with Kerri-Anne Dooley MP, mascots and friends at the Launch

Turning Love into Action, Hope into Purpose

There is no grief greater than the loss of a child.

Last November, Redcliffe couple Una and Eamonn Shealy lost their three-year-old daughter Órla to a rare and aggressive childhood cancer, metastatic pleuropulmonary blastoma, after a brave seven-month battle.

Yet through the grief of loss, the Shealy family have been inspired to help others in her memory. The Run for Órla Family Fun Day on Sunday, 15 November at Scarborough Beach Park will be a celebration of Órla's life and a way to support other families who find their lives impacted by childhood cancer.

Una said the event would be, in many ways, her way of continuing to be Órla's Mam.

"I cannot give my little girl more days," Una said. "I cannot change what happened to her, and I cannot bring her back to us. But I can make sure the days she did have continue to matter.

"I can try to turn some of the enormous love I will always have for Órla into something that helps another child and another family."

The community event will include a 10km timed run/walk and 3km family fun run and walk, along with live entertainment, a petting zoo, face painting, games and family activities.

Race entry fees will raise funds for Camp Quality, a charity supporting children and families impacted by childhood cancer. The 10km run starts at 6.30am and the 3km family run starts at 8am, followed by the family fun day until 12pm.

Una said that during some of the darkest hours of their lives, Camp Quality had given them something they desperately needed – moments of laughter, normality and precious time together as a family.

"That is why Run For Órla means so much to me," she said.

"Every registration, every donation, every share and every step taken in Órla's name helps us keep her beautiful little light shining while helping other children and families facing childhood cancer."

Run For Órla was launched at a special event in August with support from local Sunrise Runners, Moreton Bay Irish Running Club, Kerri-Anne Dooley MP, Camp Quality, The Man Walk and the Redcliffe Dolphins NRL, together with Paw Patrol characters representing Órla's much-loved favourite show.

Brisbane Writers Festival Brings Authors to Moreton Bay Libraries

STORY ALYSSA MACKAY

Three acclaimed Australian authors will visit Moreton Bay libraries this month as part of the Brisbane Writers Festival's 'Beyond Brisbane' series.

In partnership with City of Moreton Bay libraries, the festival will bring authors Kate Grenville, Pip Williams and Monica McInerney to local venues for discussions about their latest books.

Kate Grenville, author of award-winning and bestselling The Secret River, will appear at Redcliffe Library on Sunday, 11 October, from 12.30pm to 1.30pm to discuss The Country Schoolmaster: A Mystery in 88 Letters.

Kate said The Country Schoolmaster grew out of an obsession with some old letters she found in the archives about a schoolteacher in country New South Wales.

"They blossomed into a book that's a glimpse into the foreign land of the past, a human mystery about a man I'm still curious about, and the record of a writer trying to get from a few old letters to a story," Kate said. "I can't wait to see what other people make of this odd hybrid of a book."

She noted that events such as the one at Redcliffe Library provided an important connection between authors and readers.

"Reading is a solitary activity and so is writing, but you're never alone if you're part of the community of a library," she said. "For an author, there's such a buzz in talking to readers there – suddenly all those hours at the desk make sense, because a local library is where booklovers – readers and writers and all the people who do both – come together."

Also appearing at Redcliffe Library on 11 October, from 10.45am to 11.45am, will be Pip Williams, the New York Times bestselling author of The Dictionary of Lost Words and The Bookbinder of Jericho. She will discuss The German Ward, her latest novel about a doomed First World War romance between a German prisoner of war and an English nurse.

Nearby at North Lakes Library, internationally bestselling and award-winning author Monica McInerney will appear on Thursday, 8 October, from 6.30pm to 7.30pm. Monica will discuss her latest novel, When Sullivan Met Lola. The novel brings together two of her best-known characters – 12-year-old Sullivan Farrington and 86-year-old Lola Quinlan – in Melbourne.

Tea a Sensational Sip at Thai Boi

STORY PATRICIA HIGGINS

Thai Boi Sip Club aims to transport Redcliffe to the social culture around Thai drinks, from traditional teas to the world of bubble tea and even alcoholic creations – as a tea shop by day and a spritz and cocktail bar come evening.

As an extension of the Thai Boi restaurant currently located in Comino's Arcade on Redcliffe Parade, the venue plans to follow its late September soft launch by going full steam ahead into creating a new way for people to experience Thai flavours and culture.

According to Joe Kittiphath Nunyoi, Thai Boi and Thai Boi Sip Club founder, the idea was to bring the social aspect of tea drinking into a modern Australian setting.

"Across Asia, tea has traditionally been something people share, enjoy together and use to welcome guests," Joe said.

Joe said that while favourites such as Thai milk tea would feature, there would be plenty more exotic concoctions.

"At Sip Club, we're interested in exploring that broader world of tea – black tea, oolong, jasmine, matcha and roasted teas such as hojicha – and showing people how versatile tea can be," he said.

To find out more, search 'THAI BOI' on Facebook.

Foodie Fiesta Returns to Redcliffe

STORY JULIA SHRAPNEL

Food trucks, sweet treats and an inflatable outdoor cinema are on the menu when The Redcliffe Fiesta returns to Pelican Park this month.

The family-friendly night market will bring entertainment to the waterfront park overlooking Bramble Bay on Saturday, 10 October.

A festival spokesperson said the event would include activities aimed at younger visitors.

"One of the main highlights will be our inflatable outdoor cinema, with a free movie for the kids," the spokesperson said.

"Our Foodie Fiesta events are designed with families in mind and are suitable for children of all ages. We want them to be an affordable and enjoyable family night out."

Foodie Fiesta will also run giveaways through its social media pages in the lead-up to the event, including food vouchers and other prizes.

The spokesperson said the market's atmosphere was built around shared experiences rather than just the food on offer.

"Night markets bring people together through food and shared experiences," the spokesperson said. "They give families and friends somewhere to meet, enjoy a meal, talk, meet new people and spend quality time together."

"We think events like this help create a stronger sense of community."

Admission is $3 per person or $10 for a family pass, payable at the gate. Children under three are free.

A WORD FROM OUR REPRESENTATIVES

City of Moreton Bay celebrated its unique position as one of the most biodiverse regions in the world in September, Biodiversity Month, highlighting environmental initiatives and exceptional ecosystems across our City. Council remains committed to protecting and enhancing the City's biodiversity, investing $22 million in natural environment conservation this financial year.

WITH CR SANDRA RUCK

Council is continuing to support local students in achieving their university aspirations through its 2026 Scholarship Program. This year, 23 Moreton Bay students received financial assistance, including seven scholarships and 16 study support bursaries. Delivered in partnership with UniSC Moreton Bay, the program has supported 91 local students since 2020, helping them access higher education and develop skills for the City's future.

And last but not least, a call-out to our local businesses to consider supporting a community sporting club through sponsorship in 2027! Across Moreton Bay, there are many fantastic clubs providing opportunities for people of all ages to stay active, build friendships and strengthen our community. If you're looking to give back locally, why not connect with a club near you and help make a positive difference?

Redcliffe is a vibrant community. As your State Member, I am committed to delivering safer streets, more housing, supporting local families, and recognising our community champions.

The Crisafulli Government is continuing to strengthen Queensland's youth justice laws through Adult Crime, Adult Time, Breach Bail, Go to Jail. These reforms mean offenders who commit serious offences while on bail will face minimum mandatory sentences

I am delighted to sponsor Run for Órla, a beautiful community event honouring the memory of three-year-old Órla Shealy to raise awareness of childhood cancer and raise funds for Camp Quality (campquality.org.au). Locals can support by joining in Sunday, 15 November at Scarborough Beach Park for the 10km or 3km family run/walk.

Nominations are now open for my inaugural Redcliffe Volunteer Awards. From sporting, service clubs, school P&C's, to community groups, environmental projects, art and theatre and everyday acts of kindness, our volunteers make Redcliffe a wonderful place to live.

It's been a busy few weeks, and I'm proud to be out in our community delivering for local families.

WITH EMMA COMER MP

Recently, I hosted my first Welcoming the Babies event, bringing over 100 local families together to celebrate the newest members of our community, many of them from Redcliffe. It was a wonderful day and a great reminder of what makes our community such a special place.

At the same time, we're continuing to deliver on the things that matter most. In Redcliffe, we've announced 30 new social homes, funded through the Albanese Labor Government's Housing Australia Future Fund, helping more locals access a safe and secure place to call home.

We're also backing the early educators who care for and teach our youngest Australians, by locking in a 15pay increase recognising the important work they do every day.

There's always more to do, but I'm incredibly proud of what we're delivering across Redcliffe and our wider community.

A Home Away From Home

CWA “huts”, Scarborough, around 1930

The huts were self-contained and able to house a family, “in comfort” (if not luxury: the bedding consisted of “three $\frac{3}{4}$ and two single stretchers”). All furniture and fittings were provided, but residents were required to bring linen and cutlery. Some tenants expressed surprise that the “very up to date seaside cottages” should be called huts.

While access to some CWA holiday accommodations was restricted to women and children, the Redcliffe houses permitted

The Redcliffe CWA Huts

REDCLIFFE HISTORY

One hundred years ago, in September 1926, a group of women got together to form the Redcliffe branch of the Queensland Country Women's Association. In accord with the CWA ethos of “... Through Country Women, For Country Women, By Country Women”, they rolled up their sleeves and got to work helping their rural sisters.

With Redcliffe's natural advantages in mind – sunshine, sea and sand – it was not hard to come up with the best way to do this. The CWA was already providing seaside holiday accommodation for country families elsewhere in Queensland, and the organisation, recognising the peninsula's potential as a place of respite for families from the west, formulated plans to buy land and build in the area.

After the formation of the Redcliffe branch, the scheme proceeded apace and by January 1927, with the assistance of funds from the Darling Downs branch, two “huts” had been constructed overlooking Queens Beach and were ready for occupation by tenants.

husbands and older boys as well. A Mr Hansen of Dalby, who stayed there with his family in early 1928, expressed his gratitude for “the splendid holiday which the Scarborough hut afforded him...a home away from home”. Not only families experienced the hospitality of the Redcliffe CWA; in mid-1928, a party of 14 girls from Chinchilla, none of whom had ever seen the sea before, “had a very happy holiday, receiving many kindnesses from the local residents”.

Such was the popularity of Redcliffe seaside holidays that two huts were insufficient to keep up with demand and a third was built, thanks to the generosity of Mrs Mackenzie of Jondaryan, who donated the £550 required for its construction. Tenders were called in November and the “Ann Williams” hut, named for Mrs Mackenzie's mother, was opened in December – project completion times being enviably speedier in those days. A fourth hut and a caretaker's cottage were built in 1930.

A Pittsworth woman spoke glowingly of “the comfort and kindness [of]...the members of the CWA at Redcliffe”, a sentiment that many other women and families would have echoed over the years.

Saddle Up for Dolphins Country Family Fun Day

Dust off your boots, round up the family, and get ready for a country-style celebration right on the peninsula.

Cherie Jorgensen, Digital Marketing & Senior Duty Manager for the Redcliffe Leagues Club, said the inaugural Dolphins Country Family Fun Day on 2 October promises an afternoon and evening of free entertainment for the whole family.

“This is the first year we have held this event,” she said. “We want to create a bigger sense of community by holding events such as these with free entry and a focus on being family orientated.”

Guests can enjoy outdoor entertainment, including a petting zoo and animal feeding, a jumping castle, face painting, market stalls, and kids’ colouring and craft stations.

GOOD MENTAL HEALTH

The Loneliness of Starting Again

BY TANYA FISHER
WORKING WITH PURPOSE

Starting again can sound hopeful. A new home, a new job, the end of a relationship or a change in circumstances can all offer the possibility of something different.

But starting again can also be lonely.

Sometimes what we miss is not simply having people around us. We miss the feeling of being known. We miss the people who understand our history, recognise our humour, know the stories behind our stories, or simply expect us to be there.

When life changes, those everyday connections can disappear surprisingly quickly. We may find ourselves surrounded by people and still feel as though nobody really knows us yet.

Perhaps that is because belonging takes time.

Being new can feel uncomfortable. It asks us to keep showing up before we have the reassurance of knowing how or where we belong.

New relationships rarely begin with the familiarity we have left behind. They grow through small, repeated encounters – seeing the same person on a morning walk, returning to a local café, joining a group, volunteering, or simply having another conversation with someone we met last week.

Making new connections does not always require having a big social life. Sometimes it begins by returning to the same places often enough to recognise someone and, eventually, to be recognised ourselves.

Starting again may feel lonely for a while. That does not mean we do not belong.

Sometimes belonging is simply still being built.

Warm regards, Tanya

Have a thought to share? I’d love to hear from you at info@workingwithpurpose.com.au

a 'best mullet' competition, food specials and much more," Cherie said. "We also have the team from Ariat doing massive giveaways throughout the evening!"

Cherie said the club hopes to provide an affordable way for the community to enjoy a chance to get out of the house and soak up some country spirit.

"We initially thought this would be a small event, but the response from the community has been huge," she said. "We hope to have lots of families and people of all ages join us for a lively evening of free entertainment and family fun!"

BYOW

BRING YOUR OWN WONDER

STORY JULIA SHRAPNEL

Curious minds are being invited to share their interests, ideas and stories at a Bring Your Own Wonder (BYOW) gathering in Redcliffe.

Held at Redcliffe Library on Tuesday, 6 October, the community gathering will give people the chance to share something that fascinates them, or simply listen, ask questions and join the conversation.

BYOW founder Greg Dodge said the idea grew from his own curiosity and a desire to create a space for locals to explore interesting topics together.

"I wanted to explore creating a safe space for us local humans to connect and discuss interesting topics that are contributed by those that attend," Greg said.

"This is why I created it – to discover, learn, meet new people and share new topics that create the joy of sharing the wonders of the world."

Approximately 10 to 20 adults will attend each gathering, keeping the setting informal and conversational. No qualifications or presentation experience are required.

Contributions could include a story, poem, song, presentation or question, with topics ranging from science, history and nature to philosophy, spirituality, culture and the arts.

Greg said he hoped BYOW would attract younger, middle-aged and older adults, creating opportunities for people from different generations to learn from one another.

"Social cohesion is healthy for young and older communities to have deeper conversations than the mainstream collective," Greg said. "It's good for our brain and belonging to share and learn."

Those wanting to present are asked to register beforehand, as presenter time is limited to 10 to 15 minutes.

Greg said different opinions were welcome, with the gatherings giving people a chance to explore different viewpoints without needing to agree.

"It's a place where you learn to agree or disagree and still be friends," he said. "We're not looking at people selling products or services, just being fully present."

With family connections to the Redcliffe Peninsula spanning more than 30 years, Greg saw the area as a natural place to establish BYOW.

Gatherings will be held on the second Tuesday evening and fourth Saturday afternoon of each month, with the potential to expand to other parts of Moreton Bay and Brisbane.

The event is free to attend and open to adults aged 18 and over. Optional donations are welcome to help cover minor expenses.

Fashion and High Tea Combine for Myeloma Fundraiser

STORY ALYSSA MACKAY

T*his month, high tea, fashion and community spirit will come together to raise funds and awareness for myeloma.*

The second annual Glamour and Giving – High Tea in Style Fundraiser will be held at Redcliffe Leagues Club on Saturday, 18 October, with proceeds supporting Myeloma Australia.

Organised by Semone Shea, the event will include a drink on arrival, guest speakers, a fashion showcase by Pomme Vanille Island Fashion Collection, high tea and raffles, with prizes donated by community members.

Semone said the fundraiser is a special event because it combines community, friendship, and a cause close to her heart.

“As a family member of someone affected by myeloma, I felt this was a meaningful way that I could help make a difference,” Semone said.

Myeloma is a blood cancer that develops from plasma cells in the bone marrow. While it is not yet curable, advances in treatment have helped make the condition manageable, with patients experiencing periods of remission and relapse.

“By bringing our community together, we can raise much-needed funds and awareness for Myeloma Australia and help support vital research, improved treatments and better outcomes for people living with myeloma, and their families,” Semone said.

Speakers on the day include Kerri-Anne Dooley MP, a nurse specialising in in-home palliative care, and Jonah Hanlon, a Myeloma Australia nurse.

“We are delighted to have Kerri-Anne join us and share her experiences and perspective,” Semone said. “We hope her words will inspire our guests and help shine a light on the importance of compassionate care, community support and continuing to raise awareness and funds for vital causes such as myeloma.

“Jonah will provide our guests with an insight into myeloma from a healthcare professional’s perspective, helping us better understand the disease, the challenges faced by patients and families, and the importance of ongoing research, treatment and support.”

Semone said the event is supported by major sponsors SMN Accountants and Pomme Vanille Island Fashion Collection.

“For me, the event is about turning something positive and enjoyable into an opportunity to give back,” she said.

“There is something very powerful about a community coming together — every person who attends, donates, sponsors or contributes in some way becomes part of making a difference.

“We hope everyone leaves feeling inspired, uplifted and proud to have helped raise much-needed funds and awareness for Myeloma Australia.”

Tickets are available through Humanitix or in-store at Pomme Vanille Island Fashion Collection at Bluewater Square, Redcliffe.

For more information, contact Semone on 0400 305 031.

Spooky Family Movies on Netflix

MOVIE REVIEW

WITH @WATCHITWOMBAT

This spooky season, we've got you covered with some animated family-friendly frights for you and your little horrors streaming on Netflix now.

Gnome Alone

Like most scary stories, Gnome Alone starts with a family moving into a new home. Where this movie differs from others is the fact that her garden is filled with a tribe of gnomes. Which is strange enough in itself, but it gets weirder when she realises the gnomes are protecting the world from nasty creatures called Troggs. It's not treading any particularly new ground, but it's a cute adventure that everyone can enjoy.

Sing: Thriller

Doing exactly what it says on the tin, the Sing movie cast gets the Michael Jackson Thriller treatment when a Halloween party takes a spooky turn. The music and the great voice cast do the heavy lifting, but who doesn't love an MJ sing-along, especially when the singers are as cute as these guys.

The Bad Guys: Haunted Heist

Those criminal creatures are back, swapping big banks for bigger mansions...with some unexpected residents. It's a quick, slick adventure that stays true to the original movies and books, packed full of witty one liners and cool animation.

Hotel Transylvania

A classic that my family and I still quote to this day. While running a safe haven hotel for spooky creatures, Count Dracula tries to deal with his daughter flying the coop/cave. Things become even more complicated when she starts to have feelings for a human. Luckily, Drac has the support of his monstrous mates, with a voice cast that reads like a who's who of comedy.

Wendell & Wild

Finally, I'm pretty sure you've never heard of this Halloween hidden gem before (neither had I, to be honest), but its packed cast includes comedy duo Key & Peele. The pair play demons who are summoned by a troubled teen to fix her problems, which goes about as well as you would guess. The stop-frame animation makes it well worth your time. Warning: this one's for those aged over 15, earning an M rating.

TIDE TIMES OCTOBER

Fringefin Trevally Pantolabus Radiatus

Fringefin Trevally Pantolabus Radiatus are one of those Moreton Bay fish that don't get a lot of attention, but when you find them, they are great fun on light tackle.

They are relatively small, but fight well for their size and are quite distinctive with their silvery body, yellowish tail and males with extended fin rays.

This is a good time of year to target them, and recently some of the local Filipino anglers have been getting bag limits around the middle of the Hornibrook Bridge using tiny soft plastics and light jigheads. The technique is simple – cast out, let the lure sink, then whip it back quickly with the current. It's a surprisingly fast retrieve for such a small lure, but the trevally seem to love it.

Light tackle makes them even more fun. A 1-3kg or 2-4kg spin outfit with fine braid and a light fluorocarbon leader is more than enough.

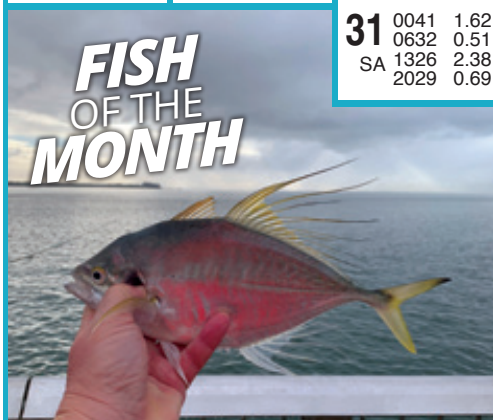

The local guys also tell me they are very good eating, which gives you another reason to target them. They have firm white flesh and are apparently excellent fresh sashimi, fried or in soups.

If you're fishing around the bridge at this time of year, keep an eye out for them – you might be surprised at just how much fun these little trevally can be.

The Grey Man Podcast

STORY NICK ALLFORD

Have you ever wondered what military life is like?

I have always been fascinated by the lives of people who put their lives on the line and work to keep people safe – and that's what drew me to The Grey Man Podcast. After serving in the Navy, creator, producer and host Harley Fox (yes, it's unfair how cool his name is) built the podcast as a platform to bridge the gap between those who served and the world they return to. His main aim is to strip away the stereotypes and foster real, unfiltered understanding through raw conversations and authentic storytelling.

If you're a civilian like me, don't worry, you won't feel left out, as Harley speaks to 'Friends of Veterans' – mates, families and colleagues of those who served, offering insights and intriguing stories to listeners. Whatever your feelings on the military, you can't help but be reminded that those who serve often need support, and Harley helps create a safe space for everyone to feel part of the conversation.

Ultimately, The Grey Man Podcast helps former service members realise they aren't alone, while providing civilians with an insightful and honest look at life inside and outside of the uniform.

Let's Hear the TV

Rather than simply increasing the TV volume, there are various options that can enhance your viewing experience.

- Activate the "Closed Captioning" or "Teletext" option to aid understanding.
- Adjust the surround sound or theatre sound settings to standard stereo or normal mode for improved speech clarity.
- Boost the mid-to-high frequencies to enhance the clarity of speech consonants, like "S" and "T." You can access the audio settings by pressing the Settings button on your TV remote.
- Use wireless TV headphones or earbuds. Choose a model with low latency transmitters to prevent any lip-sync delay.
- If you'd rather not wear headphones, a portable wireless TV speaker can bring sound closer to you, whether on a coffee table or kitchen counter.

If You Wear Hearing Aids

- Turn up the volume on your hearing aids.
- On your hearing aid settings, choose the "TV program" option.
- Consider purchasing and installing a wireless Bluetooth transmitter, like the Phonak TV Connector.
- If your TV has Bluetooth capability, pair it with your hearing aids for a seamless audio streaming experience. Keep in mind there might be some lip-sync delay.

Improving Your Environment

- Incorporate soft materials in your room to enhance acoustics and make TV dialogue clearer.
- Minimize distracting background noise, perhaps by upgrading to a new electric fan with a DC motor.
- Close windows to lessen external noise and sounds from household appliances.
- Position your chairs closer to the TV for improved audio experience.

HERE IS WHAT SOME OF OUR HAPPY CUSTOMERS SAY...

I'm really happy...

This is my first experience having hearing aids and it's made such a difference to conversations at the dinner table with my family. I'm really happy I went to Sandgate Hearing.

Andre Suchowacki,
Chermside

Ronnie is brilliant

Ronnie is brilliant. He makes a great difference to my hearing! I feel very looked after at Sandgate Hearing. I appreciate listening to music now because it's so much clearer. Generally, I can hear everyone much better without needing to ask people to repeat themselves, like I used to. My conversations with my son, are now so much better that I can hear him.

Gail Jenkins, Redcliffe

Thanks to Ronnie...

Thanks to Ronnie at Sandgate Hearing, finally I can hear clearly!!
